

Earthwork and Murmurs of a Place

Part I

In the year 2002, 8 York University students gathered in winter, to mingle with the warmth of the earth, and made earthballs big and small. Wildflower seeds were mixed in, hoping that they would break the campus' controlling, monotonous and dead "green" space. These earthballs when placed at 7 chosen locations to further highlight the place or stories hidden within.